To our Cold Mountain Music Festival family,

In light of recent developments in the COVID-19 outbreak, we felt it was important to give you an update on the status of our 4th annual Cold Mountain Music Festival event. Due to the evolving nature of the situation, the Cold Mountain team is working diligently to stay informed on CDC and WHO guidelines, as health and government officials continue to advise on measures to combat the spread of the coronavirus.

While the trajectory of this pandemic is largely unknown, we are dedicated to keeping our community in the loop as we work to make a decision about the 2020 event. Currently, Cold Mountain Music Festival slated for June 5-6, is proceeding as planned. We are closely monitoring the mandates and recommendations set forth by local, state, and federal governments and will continue to follow their lead in the coming weeks. Our hope is that we will be cleared to gather by June, however, we recognize that this is an unprecedented and unpredictable situation, and things could change course at any time. In the event that the festival can not go on as scheduled, we will be in touch promptly with ticketing information and options.

The well-being and safety of our Cold Mountain attendees, staff, performers, and collaborators is and always will be our first priority. We are balancing the line of positivity and preparedness, and we will continue to communicate any meaningful updates with you as things develop.

As you navigate the difficult days ahead, we stand with you, and we hope to see you at Lake Logan this June.
